the development of a cultural center. Arlington Heights is the first town to take advan-tage of a new law signed by Gov. Oglivie in June making such factilities possible for IIlinois municipalities. Schaumburg officials are planning a similar operation.

DEAR LEE JANSON,

I'm having a little war with a girl in my carpool. We all agreed to be ready at a sporific time each day. There is one girl who is constantly late - sometimes 20 minutes late - and never bothers to say shell be late. My mother could get us to school on time, but not this way. I've been late four times because of this. How can we solve this problem?

DAY PUBLICATIONS Monday, November 24, 1969 12. WESTOARD A Thanksgiving dinner has always been a meal prepared with love and tradition. Today's housewife has more help in the kitchen than her Pilgrim ancestors. Convenience foods and modern appliances have taken much of the labor out of cooking this family feast. But this doesn't mean that today's Thanksgiving dinner is not steeped with tradition. It only means there is more time for the whole family to be together, to build their traditions, to remember the heritage of the Pilgrims and their first Thanksgiving in 1621 and to pause and give thanks.

Each family has created their own traditional meal. It may include turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, cranberries and sweet potatoes and homemade pumpkin pie or it may have modern variations on traditional foods.

But each mother, who although busy with Thanksgiving preparations, allows even the youngest member of the family to help, is building a firm foundation for the future generation-at tradition based on love. j --marilyn helfers, editor Special GOURMET GUIDE

Holiday ice cream pie

This Cereal Ice Cream Pie offers a refreshing conclusion to a full course holiday dinner. A sprinkling of mixed candied fruits gives it a gala appearance. For adults, there is a warm butter rum sauce to spoon on each slice.

Breakfast cereals are an ex-cellent way to introduce change in crumb crusts. Their streamlined ease of prepara-tion makes them ideal con-venience looks. Here, the con-petition-like blend of marsh-mallows, with pre-wecterial cereal flakes is a perfect com-plement in texture and flavor to smooth (ce en en)

If you can make or borrow a pinata, you can have a fiesta. Or you can just fiven the pre-Christmas season with an authentic Latin American dinner party, using whatever decorations you may have to help create the right mood.

Colors should be lively, and by combining reds, greens and yellows in tablectoth and nap-kins, you're on your way. A serage or fringed rebosa make a decorative table or buffer runner. Paper lanterns and streamers will also give the right look of a tropical Latin holiday.

Top with a spoon fulful or two of salsa-more, if you like your food highly seasoned. These are good to serve on a warmer-tray, so they may be kept hot while you are pre-paring more.

Latin American cooking is very much a part of Western entertaining, and this recipe for testados comes frum Betty Wood, of Salimas, Calif. It is a meal in itself, so you will not have to bother with bread, salador vegetables—they are all served up at once in the tostado.

A salad with zing

Cinnamon puts the zing in this Santa salad.

Sweetly spiced with cinna-ion candy, studded with manmon candy, studded with man-darin oranges, celery and ap-ples, it is topped with a white cloud of sour cream. Once you serve this NI-Gas recipe, it'll become a favorite for every holiday throughout the year.

Contrary to what you may think, Warman and Nixon have a lot more in common than Crane and Nixon.

Warman and Nixon want to de-escalate the Vietnam War. Crane wants to escalate it.

Warman and Nixon want responsible domestic spending. Crane doesn't want any domestic spending.

Warman and Nixon want every American to get the best possible education. Crane doesn't want anyone in college with less than a 115 I.Q.

Yes, Ed Warman's supported by the Democratic Party. And that might bother you a little.

But Crane has a history of support from the John Birch Society. And that should bother you a lot.

Wine and wurst for a holiday party

Up in the colorful north-eastern portion of France, in the capital of Europe where the Strasburg gonce hange ex-pecially high, wine and warst are hospitality's twins. Why not adapt the simple, home style of the Abatians for your own holiday entertain-ing, and make your party of the season a wine wurst festi-val!

How to do it? Very simple. Profer longish eyrs of several sorts of wursts (this will depend on what your botcher has, but liversurst, cervelat. Blutwurst and several sorts of salami are good. Add to this come ago god sharp knives and some large black of black bread, preferably unsliced.

LAY OUT the wursts and the bread on large boards, with mustards, crisp sour pickles, bowls of warm sauerkraut if

Let's have a Mexican fiesta

If you can make or borrow a pinata, you can have a flesta. Or you can just liven the pre-Christmas season with an authentic Latin American dinner party, using whatever decorations you may have to help create the right mood.

Colors should be lively, and by combining reds, greens and yellows in tablectoth and nap-kins, you're on your way. As-erape or fringed rebosa makes a decorative table or buffet run-ner. Paper lanterns and streamers will also give the right-look of a tropical Latin holiday.

Make holiday potpourri your calling card

Leave a clever-and edible-calling card behind when you pay Christmas visits this year. We are offering two suggrand an Orange Sunflower Nut Bread (for those who don't care for fruit cake). Try using maraxchino cherries or lime instead of orange peel and juice in this recipe.

A Holiday Potpourri gift is a tangy blend of cheeses and spices, which you quickly mix yourself. Pack this cheese spread in colorful "crocks." They are quick, easy and unique.

South appeared to tie the game with 16 remaining, but Frend got a highreak. Reland Smith, who scored a beautiful layup, was called for charging and the basker nullified, it gave Wickum a free; throw, which just misked, and GBS got the rebound.

MOLOZNIK APPLIED the finishing touch when he made a brilliant steal at half-court. He nearly lost it again, but passed just in time to Hanks who wisely held the ball until the buzzer sounder.

The Jabez Howland House, Plymouth, Massachusetts

Built in 1667, this is the only house left standing in Plymouth where Pilgrims actually lived. It appears from the construction that during Jabez' ownership the roof was raised to provide rooms on the second floor. A later addition was made in 1750 so that the house is of two architectural periods. It was occupied as a dwelling until 1912 when the Pilgrim John Howland Society bought it and began to restore it to its original form.

The living room was the main room of the house and Touche left of the entry is another room which may have served as a more formal living room.

From the entry the staircase, with its steep risers and narrow treads, leads to upstairs bedrooms. Their wide-board floors were held in place by handmade nails.

Of John Howland, (who, with his wife shared the home of his son, Jabez) the old town records of Plymouth have this to say:

"He was a godly man and an ancient professor in the ways of Christ. He was one of the first comers into this land and was the last man that was left of those that came over in the Ship, called MayHower, that lived in Plymouth"

Keep those plants warm

Growing fresh flowers and vegetables, in season and out, all year long, can be done better and easier than ever before, says the Chicago Better Heating-Cooling Council, if your home has a hydronic (modern hot water) heating system.

For a modest amount of money, the amateur gardener can build a greenhouse close to his house, and it can be head by extending his present heating system. It would be just like heating another room, and maybe a lot simpler.

A greenhouse is not a "hot house," reminds the council, and many of the finest flowers, thrive with high temperatures under 50 degrees. In a cooler atmosphere, blooms are of bet-ter quality, insects are not so
